DEDICATIONS

The Miami Dolphins 2007 Media Guide is dedicated to the memories of three long-time members of the Dolphins family.

Former Pro Bowl fullback Andra Franklin died December 8, 2006 of natural causes at the age of 47 in his Lincoln, Neb., home. He was drafted in the second round by the Dolphins in 1981 and played for four years, starting in Super Bowl XVII against Washington. He is ninth on the team's all-time rushing list with 2,232 yards and 22 touchdowns from 1981-84. A knee injury forced him out of the league by the time he turned 26.

A member of the Dolphins from 1971-74, running back/kick returner Charlie Leigh died of lung cancer at age 60 on October 26, 2006 in Albany, N.Y. Leigh, who didn't play in college, was a member of the NFL's only perfect season in 1972. He won a second Super Bowl with Miami in 1973.

Dennis Sym, more commonly known to Dolphins fans as "Dolfan Denny," died on March 16, 2007 at the age of 72. Sym led Miami crowds in cheers and chants in his glittering orange and aqua hat from the Dolphins' first game in 1966, starting in the stands. In 1976, then team owner Joe Robbie asked Denny to move down to the field as the team's official motivator. Sym retired in 2000.

H. WAYNE HUIZENGA

OWNER/CHAIRMAN OF THE BOARD

NFL: 18th Season
Dolphins: 18th Season

H. Wayne Huizenga began his active involvement in South Florida sports on March 7, 1990, when he purchased 15 percent of the Miami Dolphins and a 50 percent interest in Joe Robbie Stadium, now called Dolphin Stadium. That involvement was finalized on January 24, 1994, when he acquired the remaining 85 percent of the Dolphins and the additional 50 percent of the stadium, leaving him with 100 percent ownership of both entities.

Mr. Huizenga has had an unprecedented business career as an entrepreneur. He is the only person in America to be responsible for six companies listed on the New York Stock Exchange and to have three make the Fortune 500 list. He co-founded Waste Management, Inc., the global leader in the waste industry, as well as the third-largest U.S. waste disposal company, Republic Services. Additionally, he was the CEO of Blockbuster Entertainment, the global leader in video entertainment, and founder of AutoNation, Inc., the country's first and world's largest public automotive dealership. He was also founder of Boca Resorts, Inc., an owner and operator of luxury resorts in South Florida, and co-founder of Extended Stay America, which operated in the lodging industry in many areas around the United States.

He is chairman of Huizenga Holdings, Inc., and is the sole or majority owner of several businesses. He has numerous real estate interests throughout Florida that include office buildings, warehouses, shopping centers, marinas and underdeveloped real estate acreage.

Mr. Huizenga was responsible for bringing Major League Baseball to South Florida in 1993, serving as chairman of the Florida Marlins through 1998, and under his direction the Marlins won the World Series in 1997. He also brought the National Hockey League to South Florida, serving as Owner, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of the Florida Panthers for the first eight years (1993-2001) of that team's existence, including the 1995-96 season when they reached the Stanley Cup Finals.

Mr. Huizenga's numerous entrepreneurial achievements were recognized by the Horatio Alger Association, which presented him with its top honor, along with Henry Kissinger and Supreme Court Justice Clarence Thomas, in 1992. Business and academic groups have honored Mr. Huizenga seven times as "Entrepreneur of the Year." In 2004 he was awarded the Ernst & Young United States Entrepreneur of the Year Award, and followed that by being named the 2005 Ernst & Young World Entrepreneur of the Year from a group of candidates covering 36 different countries. He is a five-time recipient of Financial World magazine's "CEO of the Year" and was named "Business Leader of the Year" by Georgetown University's Business School.

Among Mr. Huizenga's other awards are the Yale University's Gordon Grand Fellow Award, the highest non-academic award bestowed by the school, and the University of Missouri-Kansas City's International Entrepreneur of the Year. He is a member of Nova Southeastern University's Board of Trustees and recently provided the resources to establish the Huizenga School of Business and Entrepreneurship at the University.

Mr. Huizenga has been inducted into a number of business and sports halls of fame during his career. Most recently, in 2006 he was voted into the Automotive Hall of Fame for his role in transforming AutoNation, which he founded in 1996, into the world's largest automotive retailer a decade later. Earlier in 2006 he was named to the Junior Achievement U.S. Business Hall of Fame. He also has been elected to the Waste Industries Hall of Fame in 2003, the Nova Southeastern University Entrepreneur Hall of Fame in 2002, and the Video Hall of Fame in 1991.

On the sports front, he has been named to the Florida Sports Hall of Fame, the Greater Miami Sports Hall of Champions and the Broward County Hall of Fame.

Mr. Huizenga's community involvement has included membership in many civic organizations, including the Florida Council of 100, the Florida Council on Economic Education, the Salvation Army of Broward County and the Boys and Girls Club of Broward County.

The Huizenga family also is involved in many charitable organizations, including the American Heart Association, the Humane Society, the American Cancer Society, the Performing Arts Center Authority, and the Make-A-Wish Foundation. They are especially active in children's causes, such as Jack & Jill Nursery, Take Stock in Children, the Child Services Council and Kids in Distress, and have awarded scholarships to children in the community through the Horatio Alger Association.

Mr. Huizenga and wife, Marti, live in Fort Lauderdale. They have four children: Wayne, Jr., Ray, Scott, and Pam, and eight grandchildren.

CHIEF EXECUTIVE OFFICER DOLPHINS ENTERPRISES

NFL: 27th Season
Dolphins: Third Season

Joseph (Joe) A. Bailey III was named Chief Executive Officer of Dolphins Enterprises, the holding company of the Miami Dolphins and Dolphin Stadium, on January 13, 2005. Bailey joined the Dolphins from Russell Reynolds Associates, the global executive search and assessment firm. He is a former Dallas Cowboys and NFL executive with an extensive sports and business background.

Bailey is spearheading the major initiatives and innovations occurring at Dolphin Stadium. He has paved the way for the re-branding of the stadium as the foremost sports and entertainment showplace in the Americas and is currently implementing the stadium's mission of offering visitors an unparalleled live experience combining state-of-the-art technology and amenities with the gold standard in guest services.

With the team, Bailey's focus is on maintaining and expanding upon the Dolphins' position as a premier sports institution in the United States. With a respect for history and an eye toward the future, Bailey is determined that the Dolphins remain the most dynamic professional sports franchise in South Florida, while also growing its fan base worldwide and continuing the organization's aspiration of perfection on and off the field.

Bailey believes the foundation of the future of Dolphins Enterprises is based on the principle that people are the only form of a sustainable, competitive advantage. An initiative-based culture stimulates the innovative thinking required for long-term success.

While at Russell Reynolds Associates, Bailey served as the partner in charge of the firm's flagship New York office and led the company's Entertainment, Media & Sports and Corporate Communication practices. His clients included many of the world's leading sports and entertainment organizations, as well as Fortune 500 companies. In 2004, The Sporting News called Bailey the most influential executive recruiter in sports and included him on its list of "The 100 Most Powerful People in Sports."

Bailey has extensive experience in professional football. He spent nearly two decades with the Dallas Cowboys at the side of NFL Hall of Fame executive Tex Schramm. During Bailey's tenure, the Cowboys won 13 divisional titles, five NFC titles, and two Super Bowl championships.

Following his tenure in Dallas, Bailey served as Senior Vice President and COO at the World League/NFL for five years. His experience in that international venture included the introduction of a professional ten-team football league in Europe, Canada and the United States. He was responsible for all the diverse elements the startup of such a league entailed, culminating with the inaugural World Bowl in London's Wembley Stadium in 1991.

Bailey's management experience extends to other areas as well. In the mid-'90s he was Deputy Commissioner and Chief Operating Officer of The National Thoroughbred Racing Association (NTRA). He served as President of The InterCompete Group, a New York-based marketing and strategic management consulting firm, and was Co-Founder and Investment Partner in Personalities International.

JILL R. STRAFACI

LEAGUE LEADERS IN FEWEST SACKS ALLOWED

The Dolphins hold NFL records for most seasons leading the league in fewest sacks allowed (10 – 1973, 1982-90) and most consecutive seasons leading the league in the same category (1982-90). In addition, during the 1988 and 1989 seasons the Dolphins also set an NFL record by not allowing a quarterback sack in 19 consecutive games. The streak far outdistanced the previous NFL mark of five straight games, which was accomplished on many occasions. In 1988, Miami also set an NFL sack record by allowing only seven sacks in the 16-game season.

CAM CAMERON

HEAD COACH

College: Indiana
NFL: Ninth Season
Dolphins: First Season

Cam Cameron signed a four-year contract on January 19, 2007 to become the Miami Dolphins seventh head coach. He joins the Dolphins with an outstanding pedigree, having played or coached under some of sports' greatest winners, including Bob Knight, Bo Schembechler, and Marty Schottenheimer.

He also is universally respected as one of the top quarterback tutors in the game. As an indication of his prowess in developing quarterbacks, four of Cameron's last five starting QBs went on to earn Pro Bowl or collegiate All-American selection – Philip Rivers, Drew Brees, Antwaan Randle El, and Gus Frerotte.

Cameron joined the Dolphins from the San Diego Chargers, where he spent the last five seasons (2002-06) orchestrating the Bolts' potent offense. With Cameron as offensive coordinator, San Diego led the National Football League in scoring in 2006 and finished third and fifth in that category in 2004 and 2005, respectively. Over those three seasons (2004-2006), the Chargers amassed 1,356 points, a figure surpassed only by the Indianapolis Colts (1,388 points), a difference of only 32 points over 48 games. In addition, he was instrumental in the development of Pro Bowl performers Brees, Rivers, LaDainian Tomlinson, and Antonio Gates.

In 2006, the Chargers led the NFL in scoring with a team-record 492 points. It was the third season in a row the team scored more than 400 points, the first time the Chargers accomplished that feat in consecutive seasons since 1980-81. That also was the tenth-highest scoring total in NFL history since the league went to a 16-game schedule in 1978. They were the only team in the league to rush for 2,500 yards and pass for 3,400 yards, and led the NFL in red zone touchdowns with 42 TDs in 62 trips (67.7%). The Chargers also set a team record by rushing for more than 100 yards in 14 of the 16 games last year, and scored 20 or more points in all but one of those contests.

Under Cameron's direction, quarterback Philip Rivers posted a 14-2 record in his first season as a starter, which is tied for the second-best record by a QB in his first 16 starts. Cameron's play-calling helped San Diego running back LaDainian Tomlinson become the Associated Press Most Valuable Player in 2006, when he led the league in rushing with a team record 1,815 yards and set single season NFL records for most total touchdowns (31) and most rushing touchdowns (28). In all, six members of Cameron's offensive squad were named to the Pro Bowl.

In 2005, Cameron oversaw an offense that produced a 3,500-yard passer (Brees), a 1,000-yard rusher (Tomlinson), and a 1,000-yard receiver (Gates). It was the second time in team history that it happened and the first time since 1981. The Chargers were one of only six NFL teams to feature such a threesome.

Also in 2005, the trio of Brees, Tomlinson and Gates was one of only four in the league to combine for 20 touchdown passes, 10 rushing touchdowns and 10 touchdown catches. It marked the second consecutive year that the trio achieved that feat and the fifth time in team history.

With the Chargers scoring 446 points in 2004 (the third highest total in the NFL behind Indianapolis and Kansas City), all three players were selected to the Pro Bowl after the season. But that wasn't the only honor Cameron and the offense received that season; in recognition of his accomplishments molding that group into one of the most potent units in the league, Cameron was named NFL Offensive Assistant Coach of the Year by SportsIllustrated.com. In addition, Brees finished with 27 touchdown passes and 3,159 passing yards. His 104.8 passer rating ranked third in the NFL. In addition to his Pro Bowl selection, Brees' awards that season included Comeback Player of the Year and Most Improved Player of the Year honors.

In 2003, with Cameron heading the offense, Tomlinson became the first player in league history to rush for more than 1,000 yards and catch 100 passes in the same season. Tomlinson racked up 2,370 yards from scrimmage, second-most in NFL history, and rushed for 1,645 yards, third-most in team history.

In 2002, Cameron's first season as offensive coordinator, Tomlinson rushed for a then-team record 1,683 yards. In addition, Brees made his first career start and finished the season with 3,284 passing yards and 17 touchdowns.

Cameron joined the Chargers after five seasons (1997-2001) as the head coach at Indiana University. During his tenure in Bloomington, Cameron was responsible for the creative utilization of Antwaan Randle El, one of the most versatile athletes in college football history. Randle El finished his career as the NCAA Division I-A rushing leader among quarterbacks and was the only player in major college football history to both rush for 40 touchdowns and pass for 40 touchdowns in a career. He finished his career ranked fifth on the NCAA Division I-A total yardage list with 11,366 yards, one spot ahead of Doug Flutie, and had four of the top five seasons in offensive production in Indiana history.

In 2001, his Hoosier team was ranked third in the Big Ten and 19th nationally in total offense (435.3 yards per game) and was fourth in the country in rushing offense (269 yards per game). Their Big Ten victories included wins over Wisconsin in Madison (63-32), at Michigan State (37-28), Northwestern (56-21) and Purdue (13-7). Randle El finished sixth in the Heisman Trophy race, earned first-team All-America honors from the Football Writers Association, and was named as the Big Ten MVP. In addition, running back Levron Williams led the country in all-purpose yardage with more than 200 yards per game, and all five of the team's offensive linemen garnered All-Big Ten accolades, with four of them earning NFL contracts.

In 2000, Cameron's Indiana team was 13th nationally in total offense. In particular, the Hoosiers averaged 266.4 rushing yards per game, which led the Big Ten and was seventh in the nation. The team's average of 5.8 yards per carry ranked second nationally behind Nebraska. They scored more than 30 points on seven different occasions, including 45 points vs. Iowa and 51 against 23rd ranked Minnesota. A year earlier, in 1999, Indiana was 34th in total offense nationally and 19th in rushing offense.

In addition to developing his student-athletes on the field, Cameron worked hard to ensure their success in the classroom as well. During his tenure at Indiana, the school was one of only 13 universities in the country that was recognized by the AFCA for graduation rates of 70 percent or better for three consecutive years (1999-01).

Cameron's first NFL coaching stop came as the Washington Redskins' quarterbacks coach from 1994-96. While serving on Norv Turner's staff, Cameron oversaw the development of 1994 seventh-round pick Gus Frerotte, who became a Pro Bowler in 1996, and Trent Green, who served as the team's third quarterback in 1995 and 1996 before eventually becoming a two-time Pro Bowl quarterback for Kansas City.

Before moving to the NFL, Cameron was an assistant at the University of Michigan from 1984-93, serving the first six of those years under the late Bo Schembechler. Cameron started as a graduate assistant (1984-85) before working as the wide receivers coach from 1986-89. In addition to the wide receivers, he coached the quarterbacks from 1990-93, including 1991 when Wolverines wide receiver Desmond Howard won the Heisman Trophy. During his 10 seasons as an assistant at Michigan, the program won six Big Ten titles and played in 10 bowl games. In addition to Howard, Cameron was the position coach for such future NFL players as quarterbacks Elvis Grbac and Todd Collins as well as wide receivers Derrick Alexander and Amani Toomer, among others.

Grbac ended his Michigan career under Cameron as one of the most prolific passers in school history. He finished in 1992 as the school record-holder in eight different career passing categories, including completion percentage (62.5), completions (522), yards passing (6,460), touchdowns (71) and passing efficiency (148.14). He was the NCAA leader in passing efficiency in both 1991 (169.0) and 1992 (150.18) and was a finalist for the 1992 Johnny Unitas and Davey O'Brien Awards.

In 1991 Grbac's 25 touchdown passes set a school record. That same year, along with Heisman Trophy winner Howard, the duo set the NCAA record for most touchdowns by the same quarterback/receiver tandem in a career (31), and tied the NCAA single-season record for touchdown by the same passer and receiver (19).

That same season Howard caught 61 passes for 950 yards with those 19 touchdowns as a senior. He set an NCAA record at the time with at least one touchdown catch in ten consecutive games.

For Cameron, the move into coaching was a natural fit. His stepfather, Tom Harp, was a head coach at Cornell (1961-65), Duke (1966-70), and Indiana State (1973-77). Cameron and Harp each have a unique distinction of coaching a Heisman Trophy winner. Cameron coached Howard at Michigan, while Harp was an assistant coach at Army when Pete Dawkins won that trophy in 1958.

Before embarking on his coaching career, as a collegian Cameron played varsity football and basketball at Indiana. He earned two letters as a quarterback for Lee Corso (1982) and Sam Wyche (1983) and two (1981-82, 1982-83) playing basketball for Bob Knight before a football knee injury in his senior year ended his playing career. He graduated from Indiana in 1983 with a degree in business.

Cameron was a two-sport prep standout for South Vigo High School in Terre Haute, Ind., where he lived while his stepfather coached at Indiana State. In football he was an All-America selection at quarterback as a senior and earned all-state honors twice and all-county honors three times. He was named Vigo County's Athlete of the Year in 1978 and 1979. Cameron also led his team to three consecutive state basketball finals, and in 1979 he was named the winner of the state's prestigious Trester Award for mental attitude. Also in 1979, he was named national Athlete of the Year by the Fellowship of Christian Athletes.

Cameron was born on February 6, 1961 in Chapel Hill, North Carolina. He and his wife, Missy, have four children, sons Tommy, Danny, and Christopher, and daughter Elizabeth.

KEITH ARMSTRONG

SPECIAL TEAMS COORDINATOR

College: Temple
NFL: 14th Season
Dolphins: Seventh Season

Keith Armstrong is entering his seventh season guiding the Dolphins' special teams units. In Armstrong's six previous seasons with the team, the Dolphins have finished in the top eight in the NFL in punt return defense all but one season. Dolphins' opponents have averaged only 6.1 yards per punt return during this time, including a 4.5-yard mark in 2001 when they led the league in this category, and a 4.9-yard average in 2005, which ranked third in the league. In addition, the Dolphins have allowed just one punt or kickoff return for a touchdown over the last six years, tied with Dallas for the fewest in the NFL over this stretch. The Dolphins also have been in the top eight in the NFL in opponents' average drive start after kickoffs all six seasons, including a No. 1 ranking in 2003 with a 25.0 mark and a No. 2 finish last year, with a 24.9 figure.

In 2005, the Dolphins' special teams unit achieved a No. 4 ranking in a rating system compiled by the Dallas Morning News, which consists of numerous special teams categories. The year before, they finished third.

Armstrong came to the Dolphins after serving the previous four seasons (1997-00) in the same role with the Chicago Bears. In 2000, Chicago's special teams blocked a pair of opponent field goal attempts while also ranking fourth in the NFL in punt return defense, allowing an average of just 7.0-yards per return. In 1998 and 1999, the Bears' special teams unit ranked fourth overall in the NFL based on a formula consisting of numerous categories. In 1999, Armstrong's group recovered six fumbles and blocked an NFL-high four field goals. In Armstrong's four seasons, the Bears ranked in the top ten in the NFL in punt return average, punt coverage and kickoff coverage twice each. In 1999, they led the league in kickoff coverage, having allowed an average of just 16.6 yards per return.

Armstrong first started in the NFL with the Atlanta Falcons in 1994, where he coached the safeties for two years before being promoted to secondary coach in 1996. Prior to his full-time positions in the NFL, Armstrong was part of the league's Minority Coaching Fellowship program during training camps with the Jets (1991), Dallas (1992) and Chicago (1993).

Armstrong was a four-year letterman (1983-86) as a running back and defensive back at Temple University, where he earned his undergraduate degree in health education. He started his coaching tenure as a graduate assistant at his alma mater in 1987. He went to the University of Miami (Fla.) in 1988 where he worked with the defensive backs and special teams. Armstrong spent one year with the Hurricanes before joining the Akron staff as receivers coach in 1989. A one-year tenure there preceded his move to Oklahoma State, where he served three years (1990-92) as secondary coach. His final collegiate post came as linebackers and special teams coach at Notre Dame in 1993.

Armstrong, who grew up in Levittown, Pa., attended Bishop Egan High School in Philadelphia. He and his wife, Kathleen, have two daughters, Kaitlin and Kristen.

DOM CAPERS

DEFENSIVE COORDINATOR

College: Mount Union
NFL: 22nd Season
Dolphins: Second Season

Dom Capers, one of the most respected defensive coaches in the NFL is entering his second season with the Miami Dolphins in 2007. Of Capers' 21 seasons in the NFL, nine have been spent as a head coach, including four with the Carolina Panthers (1995-98) and five with the Houston Texans (2001-05).

In Capers' initial season heading up the Dolphins' defense in 2006, the unit allowed an average of 289.1 yards per contest, as they ranked No. 4 in overall defense in the NFL, a 14-spot improvement from the previous season. They also ranked fifth in points allowed (283) and third in total sacks (47). Defensive end Jason Taylor and linebacker Zach Thomas both were voted to the AFC Pro Bowl squad, while Taylor was the NFL Defensive Player of the Year, the second player to earn this accolade under Capers' tutelage, as Pittsburgh cornerback Rod Woodson came away with the honor in 1993 while Capers was the Steelers' defensive coordinator.

Capers was hired by the expansion Texans on January 21, 2001, more than a year before the franchise played its first game. After finishing 4-12 in the club's inaugural season, the team improved its record from the previous year in both 2003 (5-11) and 2004 (7-9) before falling to 2-14 in 2005.

Taking over an expansion team was nothing new for Capers, who also was the head coach with the Carolina Panthers from 1995-98. He guided that team to a 7-9 record in its first season, as they set an NFL record for most wins by an expansion club. That year, he was the Pro Football Weekly/PFWA Coach of the Year. The following year, the Panthers posted a record of 12-4, captured the NFC West title, and played in the NFC Championship game where they fell to the eventual Super Bowl champion Green Bay Packers. For his team's performance, Capers was a consensus choice as NFL Coach of the Year. Carolina's four-year record under Capers was 30-34.

Capers got his start in the pro coaching ranks as defensive backs coach with the Philadelphia/Baltimore Stars of the USFL from 1984-85, as the team claimed the league title both years. He followed Jim Mora to the NFL in 1986 and served as the Saints' defensive backs coach from 1986-91, during which time the team qualified for the playoffs three times – the first three postseason appearances in that franchise's history. In his final year in New Orleans, the Saints finished second in the NFL in pass defense. Capers was named defensive coordinator with the Pittsburgh Steelers in 1992. The Steelers won a pair of AFC Central Division crowns during Capers' three years with the team (1992-94), made the playoffs all three years and played in the AFC Championship game in 1994. Linebacker Greg Lloyd and cornerback Rod Woodson each were selected to the AFC Pro Bowl squad all three seasons. In Capers' last season in Pittsburgh, the Steelers led the NFL in rush defense as he was named the Assistant Coach of the Year by Pro Football Weekly/PFWA. Following his first stop as a head coach, Capers was named defensive coordinator with the Jacksonville Jaguars in 1999, and manned that spot for the next two years. Under Capers, the Jaguars ranked fourth in the NFL in total defense in his first season there, a 21-spot improvement from the previous year. Jacksonville also led the NFL in scoring defense that year (13.6 ppg), set club records for sacks (57) and interceptions (19), and equaled the team mark for takeaways (30). Following the season, Capers was named Assistant Coach of the Year by several media outlets.

Prior to embarking on his professional coaching career, Capers made stops as a collegiate assistant at Kent State (graduate assistant, 1972-74), Hawaii (1975-76), San Jose State (1977), California (1978-79), Tennessee (1980-81) and Ohio State (1982-83).

Capers graduated with a degree in physical education and a minor in psychology from Mount Union College in Alliance, Ohio, where he played safety and linebacker. He went on to earn his master's degree in administration from Kent State.

Capers grew up in Buffalo, Ohio, where he was a star athlete at Meadowbrook High School. He still hosts an annual charity golf tournament in the area, which raises money for the American Heart Association. Capers resides in South Florida with his wife, Karen.

TIM DAVIS

ASSISTANT OFFENSIVE LINE

College: Utah
NFL: Third Season
Dolphins: Third Season

Tim Davis enters his third season as an NFL assistant, as he works alongside Hudson Houck in tutoring the Dolphins' offensive line. Davis joined the Dolphins with more than 15 years of experience at the collegiate level, including the previous three with the 2004 national champion USC Trojans.

In his first season with the Dolphins in 2005, Davis helped Houck transform an offensive line that allowed only 26 sacks, the fourth-lowest figure in the NFL that year. Led by the offensive line, the Dolphins' running game averaged 4.3 yards per rush attempt in 2005 and 4.2 last year, representing the first time the Dolphins have averaged better than a 4.0 yards per carry in consecutive seasons since 1986-87.

In Davis' three years at USC, the team won a major bowl game each season and claimed at least a share of the national championship the final two years. He was in charge of the Trojans' guards and centers in his first year at the school before handling the entire line from 2003-04. In Davis' two years in this capacity, USC yielded a total of only 40 sacks, an average of 1.5 per game. In 2003, tackle Jacob Rogers was a consensus All-America selection and went on to become a second-round draft choice of Dallas in 2004. In addition, the line blocked for a pair of Heisman Trophy winning quarterbacks in Carson Palmer (2002) and Matt Leinart (2004).

Davis first went to USC in 2002 following a five-year stint (1997-2001) as tight ends/offensive tackles coach at the University of Wisconsin. The Badgers played in a bowl game in four of those five seasons and in 1999, Davis helped coach an offensive line that led the way for Heisman Trophy winning running back Ron Dayne. Davis got his start in the coaching profession at the Madison, Wis. school as a volunteer assistant in 1983 and 1986, and a graduate assistant from 1984-85. After one more year as a graduate assistant, at the University of Arizona in 1987, Davis landed his first full-time coaching position the following year, as offensive coordinator at Walla Walla (Wash.) Community College. He moved on to Idaho State as offensive line coach in 1989 before being named to the same post at Utah in 1990, a spot which he manned for the next seven seasons. During that seven-year stint at Utah, the Utes made four bowl appearances after not having been to a postseason game since 1964.

After beginning his collegiate career at Chabot Junior College in Hayward, Calif., Davis went on to become a three-year letterman as an offensive tackle at Utah, from 1978-80. He earned his degree in physical education from the Salt Lake City school in 1982, and his master's degree in higher education from Wisconsin in 1986. Following his collegiate playing career, he had brief stints with the Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Canadian League (1981) and the Los Angeles Express of the USFL (1983).

A native of Castro Valley, Calif., Davis and his wife, Janice, have a son, Nick, and a daughter, Mary Rose.

Since the NFL first instituted the open week in 1990, the Dolphins are 9-8 in games preceding the bye week, including a 34-24 loss to Green Bay on October 22 of last year at Dolphin Stadium.

Miami owns an 11-7 record in games following a bye week, including a 31-13 win over Chicago on November 5 of last year at Soldier Field. The Dolphins recorded victories in each of their first seven games following the bye and eight of their first nine.

MICHAEL DUMAS

Dolphins: Third Season

Michael Dumas, a veteran of nine seasons as a player in the NFL, is entering his third season as a member of the Dolphins' staff and the first in his current role. For the past two years, he has assisted with player development and special teams.

Dumas was originally selected by the Houston Oilers in the second round of the 1991 draft, and played with Houston (1991-93), Buffalo (1994), Jacksonville (1995) and San Diego (1997-2000) during his NFL tenure. ### DOLPHINS POST 28 ALL-TIME SHUTOUTS

The Miami Dolphins have held an opponent scoreless 28 times (25 times in the regular season and three in the playoffs) in the history of the franchise, including a high of seven shutouts of the Baltimore/Indianapolis Colts. Miami has recorded 19 shutouts at home and nine on the road. Their most recent shutout occurred in a 21-0 decision over New England on December 10 of last year at Dolphin Stadium. The Dolphins have been held scoreless a total of 17 times (16 regular season, 1 playoff), including three times by the New England Patriots and Buffalo Bills and twice each by the Baltimore/Indianapolis Colts, Cleveland Browns and Kansas City Chiefs. Miami has been shut out four times at home and 13 times on the road, having most recently been blanked by the Buffalo Bills, 21-0, on December 17, 2006 at Ralph Wilson Stadium.

GEORGE EDWARDS

LINEBACKERS

College: Duke
NFL: Tenth Season
Dolphins: Third Season

George Edwards is entering his third season as the Dolphins' linebackers coach in 2007. He possesses nine seasons as an NFL assistant coach on his résumé, including one as a coordinator.

In Edwards' first year with the Dolphins, Zach Thomas was selected to the Pro Bowl for the sixth time, as he recorded 166 tackles despite only playing in 14 games. Rookie Channing Crowder, a third-round draft choice, made a tremendous impact on the success of the defense as he started 13 games and registered 90 tackles, the highest total by a Dolphins rookie since 1996 (Thomas, 180). Last year, Thomas was selected to the AFC Pro Bowl squad once again, and Crowder recorded 104 tackles, the second consecutive season in which the pair finished 1-2 on the team's tackle chart, respectively.

Before joining the Dolphins, Edwards was the linebackers coach with the Cleveland Browns in 2004. That followed a two-year stint with the Washington Redskins, including 2003 as the team's defensive coordinator. Following the '03 season, linebacker LaVar Arrington and cornerback Champ Bailey were selected to the NFC Pro Bowl squad. In 2002, Edwards served as the Redskins' assistant defensive coordinator/linebackers coach, as Arrington accounted for the most productive season of his NFL career with 107 tackles and 11 sacks in earning his second straight Pro Bowl berth. In addition, that year each of the team's starting linebackers, which also included Jesse Armstead and Jeremiah Trotter, surpassed the 100-tackle plateau.

Edwards began his NFL coaching career with a four-season stint with the Dallas Cowboys (1998-2001), where he tutored the team's linebackers. Under Edwards' guidance, Dexter Coakley, a third-round draft choice in 1997, was selected to the Pro Bowl twice over this four-year span (1999, 2001), as he was Dallas' second-leading tackler all four years.

Before embarking on his NFL coaching career, Edwards held collegiate assistant posts at Georgia (1997), Duke (1996), Appalachian State (1992-95) and Florida (1991). During his one-year tenure at Georgia, Edwards tutored a defensive line which included a pair of freshmen in Richard Seymour and Marcus Stroud, both of whom would be selected in the first round of the 2001 NFL Draft. A native of Siler City, N.C., Edwards is a Duke University alumnus, where he was a four-year letterman. He was a two-year special teams captain and an All-ACC honorable mention selection at linebacker in 1989. Edwards and his wife, Jami, have a son, B.J.

ASSISTANT SPECIAL TEAMS

College: Dickinson College

NFL: 18th Season

Dolphins: First Season

Steve Hoffman was added to the Dolphins' coaching staff on February 12, 2007. He brings with him a bevy of NFL coaching experience, having served 17 years in the league, most recently as assistant special teams coach with the Atlanta Falcons in 2006.

From 1989-2004, Hoffman worked with the Dallas Cowboys' kickers and punters, and under his guidance, kickers established 15 separate club records, including every single-season standard in team history. Punters who tutored under Hoffman, own a combined seven club marks. Following his first season with Dallas, Hoffman also held the role of quality control coach on both the offensive and defensive sides of the ball.

During his tenure in Dallas, Hoffman gained the reputation for developing young kickers and punters. This included kickers such as Chris Boniol and Richie Cunningham, as well as punters such as John Jett and Toby Gowin. In fact, Hoffman brought in five rookie or first-year free agent kickers to Dallas in his 16 years with the team, and all five accounted for a minimum of 18 field goals in their first year with the club.

Cowboys' kickers and punters were instrumental in helping the team to three Super Bowl titles during Hoffman's tenure. Combined in those three seasons (1992, 1993, 1995), kickers converted 82.3 percent of their field goals (79 of 96), while punters averaged 41.6 with 60 kicks inside the 20 and just 18 touchbacks.

Prior to embarking on his NFL coaching career, Hoffman tutored the kickers and punters at the University of Miami from 1985-87, where one of his pupils was punter Jeff Feagles, who has spent the last 19 years (1988-2006) in the NFL. In his senior season of 1987, Feagles put together a career-high 40.8-yard average as he helped the Hurricanes to the national championship. In addition, Hoffman spent two springs in the Italian League, as offensive coordinator with the Bellusco Seahawks (1987) and Rho Blacknights (1988). He was a coach at Sunset High School in Miami in the fall of 1988.

While out of the NFL in 2005, Hoffman did consulting work for various NFL teams while also continuing to spend time with his own kicking and punting tutorial business. He also has been an instructor at the nationally renowned Ray Pelfrey's kicking camps.

A native of Camden, N.J., Hoffman grew up in York, Pa. He was a member of the Dickinson (Pa.) College football squad, where he played quarterback, running back and wide receiver, while also handling the kicking and punting chores. He went on to punt one year (1983) with the Washington Federals of the USFL, while also attending NFL training camps with Washington (1981, 1983), Seattle (1984) and New Orleans (1985). Hoffman holds a bachelor of arts degree in economics from Dickinson and a master's of science degree in sports administration from St. Thomas University in Miami. He is married to Aline, and has a daughter, Micaela, and a son, Luca.

HUDSON HOUCK

OFFENSIVE LINE

College: USC
NFL: 25th Season
Dolphins: Third Season

Hudson Houck, one of the most respected offensive line coaches in the NFL, is entering his third season as a member of the Dolphins' staff. A veteran of 24 years as an NFL assistant, Houck came to the Dolphins after spending the previous three years in the same capacity with San Diego.

In 2005, Houck transformed an offensive line that ranked fourth in the NFL in sacks allowed with 26, the lowest total by the Dolphins over the last three years, and half the total that they permitted in 2004. Houck's unit also played an integral role in the success of the Dolphins' running game, which averaged 4.3-yards per rush attempt. Last season, the running game averaged 4.2 yards per attempt, the first time a Dolphins team averaged 4.0 or better in consecutive seasons since the 1986-87 campaigns. Second-year running back Ronnie Brown put together his first 1,000-yard rushing season as a pro with 1,008 yards.

With the Chargers in 2004, Houck helped to revitalize an offensive line which featured five new starters from the previous year. The Chargers ranked tenth in the NFL in total offense, including a No. 6 finish on the ground, as they averaged 136.6 yards rushing per contest. LaDainian Tomlinson ran for more than 1,300 yards in each of Houck's three years there, including more than 1,600 in his first two. The Chargers' line permitted just 21 sacks in 2004, the fourth-lowest total in the NFL and the eighth-fewest in that franchise's 45-year history. Overall in Houck's three seasons with the Chargers, the offensive line allowed an average of only 24.6 sacks per season. Their total of 74 sacks over this three-year period was the fourth-lowest in the NFL over this stretch.

Houck joined the Chargers following a nine-year stint as offensive line coach with the Dallas Cowboys (1993-2001). This included four years (1994-97) when he also held the title of assistant head coach. Over this nine-year period, the Cowboys permitted a total of only 203 sacks, the lowest figure in the NFL. They yielded less than 20 sacks three times and less than 30 on six occasions. During Houck's tenure in Dallas, six different offensive linemen made a total of 22 trips to the Pro Bowl. This group included Larry Allen (7), Nate Newton (5), Erik Williams (4), Ray Donaldson (2), Mark Stepanoski (2) and Mark Tuinei (2). The unit helped Emmitt Smith to a pair of NFL rushing titles over this nine-year stretch as he ran for more than 1,000 yards each time.

Prior to his stint with the Cowboys, Houck spent one year (1992) tutoring the offensive line with the Seattle Seahawks, when Chris Warren rushed for 1,017 yards, the first time in his career that he reached the 1,000-yard mark. This came on the heels of another successful nine-year run, with the Los Angeles Rams from 1983-91. Over his nine-year stint with the Rams, there were seven different individual 1,000-yard rushing seasons and four individual league rushing titles, including an NFL-record 2,105 yards by Eric Dickerson in 1984. Over this stretch, five different Rams offensive linemen were voted to a combined 21 Pro Bowls, including Jackie Slater (7), Doug Smith (6), Kent Hill (3), Dennis Harrah (3) and Tom Newberry (2). In the final three years of Houck's tenure with the Rams, quarterback Jim Everett passed for more yards than any other signal caller over this span and he also did not miss a start from 1988-91.

Overall in his 24 years as an NFL assistant, Houck's lines have paved the way for twenty individual 1,000-yard rushing seasons. The running backs who benefitted from the blocking, which have compiled six NFL rushing titles, consist of Emmitt Smith (Dallas, 9), Eric Dickerson (Rams, 4), LaDainian Tomlinson (San Diego, 3), Greg Bell (Rams, 2), Ronnie Brown (Miami, 1), Chris Warren (Seattle, 1) and Charles White (Rams, 1).

Before embarking on his NFL coaching career, Houck tutored the offensive line at his alma mater, USC, from 1976-82. During this time, he helped send numerous Trojans to the NFL including Marvin Powell, Pat Howell, Brad Budde, Anthony Muñoz, Keith Van Horne, Chris Foote, Roy Foster, Bruce Matthews, Don Mosebar and Tony Slaton, among others. This group helped lead the way for Heisman Trophy-winning running backs Charles White and Marcus Allen, in addition to another USC great Ricky Bell, an NFL first-round draft choice in 1977.

Houck was a center at USC from 1962-64 and was part of the Trojans' 1962 national championship squad. He began his coaching career as an assistant at Crescenta Valley (Calif.) High School in 1966. After serving two years in the United States Army, Houck returned for one season at Crescenta. He then moved on to coach the freshmen team at USC from 1970-71 before becoming Stanford's offensive line coach in 1972, a position he held for four seasons. In his first year with the Cardinal, he also was the Freshman Coach.

During his tenure with the Cowboys, Houck was a supporter of The Rise School of Dallas, a nonprofit organization which provides educational services to children with Down's Syndrome. He and his offensive linemen, in conjunction with The Rise School, participated in the First Down for Down Syndrome fund-raising program.

A Los Angeles native, Houck attended that city's Eagle Rock High School. He has a son, Troy. His wife Elsie, has two children, Scott and Holly.

BOBBY JACKSON

RUNNING BACKS

College: Samford
NFL: 21st Season
Dolphins: First Season

Bobby Jackson was named the Dolphins' running backs coach on April 24, 2007. He joins the team with 20 seasons of experience as an NFL assistant, including three as an offensive coordinator.

In his NFL tenure, Jackson has coached five Pro Bowl running backs, including at least one in three of his four stops where he has tutored the running backs. The list consists of Marshall Faulk (St. Louis, 2000-02), Stephen Davis (Washington, 1999), Terry Allen (Washington, 1996), Brian Mitchell (Washington, 1995) and Marion Butts (San Diego, 1990-91).

Most recently, Jackson was the associate head coach/offensive coordinator/running backs with the Rams from 2000-02, and in his three years in St. Louis, the Rams led the NFL in total offense in 2000 and 2001 as they averaged 442.2 and 418.1 yards per game, respectively, in those two years. In addition, Marshall Faulk surpassed the 1,000-yard rushing mark twice during that time, finishing second in the NFC in rushing in 2000 (1,359 yards) and third in 2001 (1,382 yards). He also led all NFC running backs in receptions all three years, as he averaged more than 81 catches a season over that stretch. The Rams' running game averaged more than 4.0 yards per attempt all three seasons.

Jackson served as running backs coach with the Redskins from 1994-99 and in his six years in Washington, the team produced a 1,000-yard running back three times, including Terry Allen (1995-96) and Stephen Davis (1999). Allen finished third in the NFC in rushing both times he reached the plateau while Davis led the conference in that category in 1999. As a unit, the Redskins topped the 4.0-yard average per carry mark on four occasions.

Jackson was the running backs coach with the Phoenix Cardinals from 1992-93, and in his final year with the team, Ronald Moore amassed 1,018 yards rushing, the first Cardinals running back to break the 1,000-yard barrier since 1985. Also in '93, Larry Centers led the team with 60 receptions, a figure which ranked second among NFC running backs that year.

During Jackson's five-year tenure as running backs coach in San Diego (1987-91), the Chargers surpassed the 4.0-yard per carry mark in each of his final four seasons. In fact, over that four-year stretch (1988-91), the Chargers averaged 4.6 yards per rush attempt, and led the league in this department in 1991 (4.8), while finishing second in 1988 (4.7) and third in 1990 (4.7). Gary Anderson (1,119 yards in 1988) and Marion Butts (1,225 yards in 1990) each went over 1,000 yards rushing during that time.

Jackson's initial stop in the NFL was with the Atlanta Falcons where he served as linebackers coach from 1983-85 and tight ends coach in 1986.

Prior to his NFL stint, Jackson held collegiate assistant posts at Tennessee (1977-82), Louisville (1975-76), Kansas State (1970-74) and Florida State (1965-69). For seven of his 18 seasons at the collegiate level he served as defensive coordinator, including his stops at Kansas State (1973-74), Louisville and Tennessee (1980-82).

A native of Forsyth, Ga., Jackson attended Samford University where he was a two-time Little All-America running back for Head Coach Bobby Bowden. He earned his bachelor's degree in physical education from the Birmingham, Ala. school, and went on to earn his master's in physical education from George Peabody College, now a part of Vanderbilt University.

Before joining the Dolphins this offseason, Jackson had spent the previous four seasons on his farm in Central Alabama, along with his wife, Nancy.

Jackson and his wife have two sons, Jeff and Ken.

He re-joined the Dolphins as a free agent in 1969 and was traded on November 23, 1971, to Denver for a seventh-round pick in 1972.

TRAVIS JONES

DEFENSIVE LINE (ENDS)

College: Georgia
NFL: Third Season
Dolphins: Third Season

Now in his third season as an NFL assistant, Travis Jones was named to the Dolphins' coaching staff on January 19, 2005.

In his first year with the Dolphins in 2005, Jones assisted with a defensive line that was responsible for 35 of the team's 49 sacks and the unit helped to hold opponents to a 3.7-yard average per rush attempt, the fourth-best figure in the AFC.

Prior to joining the Dolphins, Jones spent the previous two seasons (2003-04) at LSU where he was the Tigers' defensive line coach/recruiting coordinator both years. In Jones' first season in Baton Rouge, the Tigers' defensive front recorded 31 of the team's school-record 44 sacks, while also limiting opponents to 67 yards rushing per game, a figure that ranked first in the SEC and third nationally. Defensive tackle Chad Lavalais was a consensus All-American and a finalist for the Nagurski and Lombardi Awards. Lavalais was named National Defensive Player of the Year by the Sporting News and SEC Defensive Player of the Year by the league's coaches. Following the 2003 season, Lavalais and defensive end Marquise Hill were both selected in the NFL Draft. Defensive end Marcus Spears was named First-Team All-SEC in 2003 by the Associated Press and was a consensus All-America pick in 2004 as he registered nine sacks that year, tied for the fourth-highest single-season total in school history and the most since 1995. Spears was a first-round draft choice of Dallas in 2005.

Prior to his stint at LSU, Jones served as a member of the Kansas coaching staff for two years (2001-02), where he worked with the Jayhawks' defensive linemen. While there, he tutored defensive tackle Nate Dwyer, a first-team All-Big 12 selection in 2001, who also was a fourth-round draft choice of Arizona in 2002. That was preceded by a three-year stint as linebackers coach and recruiting coordinator at Appalachian State (1998-2000). Jones began his coaching career at his alma mater, the University of Georgia, as a graduate assistant in 1997 where he worked with the defensive line, which included a pair of freshmen in Richard Seymour and Marcus Stroud. Jones was a four-year letterwinner (1990-92, 94) as a defensive lineman for the Bulldogs and served as a defensive captain in his final year before graduating in 1995. He also earned a master's degree from the school in 1998.

Jones played one season with the Baltimore Stallions of the Canadian Football League in 1995 and then joined the Florida Bobcats of the Arena League in 1996.

The first to do it was kicker Garo Yepremian, who accomplished the feat in the 1974 game, when he kicked five field goals, including a 42-yarder with 21 seconds remaining, lifting the AFC to a 15-13 victory over the NFC. Almost 30 years later, running back Ricky Williams duplicated the achievement, when he rushed for 56 yards and two touchdowns, and forced a fumble on special teams, en route to the AFC's 45-20 triumph in the 2003 contest, following the 2002 season.

In Maxie's first year with the Falcons, the defense recorded a club-record five defensive touchdowns, four of which came via interceptions. Prior to his tenure in Atlanta, Maxie spent five seasons with San Francisco, including 1999-2001 as the team's assistant secondary coach and 2002-03 as secondary coach. In those final two years, safety Tony Parrish collected 16 interceptions, the highest total in the NFL over this stretch. This included nine in 2003, tied for the highest figure in the NFL. Maxie got his start as an NFL assistant 1998 when he served as defensive backs/defensive quality control coach with the Carolina Panthers, where he worked under Dolphins' defensive coordinator Dom Capers, then the head coach with Carolina.

Maxie's coaching tenure followed a 13-year playing career which started as an undrafted college free agent with New Orleans in 1985. # MIKE MULARKEY

TIGHT ENDS

College: Florida
NFL: 14th Season
Dolphins: Second Season

Mike Mularkey begins his second season as a member of the Dolphins coaching staff in 2007. He owns an impressive NFL résumé, and is one of several members of the offensive staff with experience as a coordinator or head coach in the NFL. Before joining the Dolphins in 2006, Mularkey had spent the previous two seasons (2004-05) as head coach with the Buffalo Bills.

In Mularkey's two years in Buffalo, the team posted a composite record of 14-18, including a 9-7 mark in his first season there as the Bills reeled off wins in nine of their final 12 games.

Prior to taking over the helm with the Bills, Mularkey spent the previous eight seasons (1996-2003) on the staff of the Pittsburgh Steelers, including the final three as offensive coordinator. Under Mularkey's guidance, Pittsburgh finished third and fifth, respectively, in the NFL in total offense in his first two years in the post, and led the league in rushing offense (173.4 ypg) in 2001. Also that year, quarterback Kordell Stewart threw for 3,109 yards and was selected to the AFC Pro Bowl squad. The Steelers went 13-3 in 2001, captured the AFC Central Division title and played in the AFC Championship game. In 2002, Mularkey oversaw the resurgence of quarterback Tommy Maddox, who, after having not played in the NFL from 1996-2000, completed 234 of 377 passes for 2,836 yards with 20 touchdowns and 16 interceptions and was named NFL Comeback Player of the Year. Maddox's 62.1 percent completion mark that year was a franchise single-season record at the time.

Prior to being elevated to offensive coordinator, Mularkey spent his first five years in Pittsburgh as the team's tight ends coach. During that time, he oversaw the development of Mark Bruener, who was regarded as one of the premier run-blocking tight ends over this stretch. In Mularkey's five years as the Steelers' tight ends coach, Jerome Bettis shattered the 1,000-yard rushing plateau each time and the Steelers as a team placed in the top ten in the NFL in rushing offense every year, including a No. 2 finish in 1996 and a No. 1 ranking in 1997.

Mularkey got his start in the NFL coaching ranks as a quality control coach with Tampa Bay in 1994. He was promoted to tight ends coach with the Bucs the following year, and in his lone season in that post, tight end Jackie Harris caught a team-high 62 passes for 751 yards, one of only three tight ends in that teams' history to top the club's receiving chart.

Mularkey was a ninth-round draft choice of the San Francisco 49ers in 1983. He was picked up off waivers by Minnesota in training camp that year and went on to play the next six seasons with the Vikings. He joined Pittsburgh as a Plan B free agent in 1989 and played three years with the Steelers. His career totals consist of 114 games played, during which time he tallied 102 receptions for 1,222 yards and nine touchdowns. He had his most productive season in 1990 when he caught 32 passes for 365 yards and three touchdowns. Following his playing career, he served as offensive line coach at Concordia College in 1993.

A Florida native, Mularkey lettered three years at the University of Florida (1980-82). Prior to that, he attended Northeast High School in Ft. Lauderdale, where he played quarterback. He and his wife, Betsy, have two sons, Patrick and Shane.

MEL PHILLIPS

SECONDARY (CORNERBACKS)

College: North Carolina A&T
NFL: 27th Season
Dolphins: 23rd Season

Mel Phillips enters his 23rd season as a coach for the Dolphins. During his first 11 years with the club, Phillips served as defensive backs coach. His 22 straight seasons with the same team is tied for the second-longest current streak among NFL position coaches, trailing only Cincinnati running backs coach Jim Anderson (1984), and tied with Detroit defensive assistant Don Clemons.

Phillips has helped the Dolphins finish in the top eight in the NFL in pass defense seven of the last nine seasons, including a No. 1 finish in 2001 (176.8 ypg) and a No. 2 finish in 2004 (162.0 ypg). In 2006, they allowed 187.9 yards per game through the air, the fifth-lowest figure in the NFL. They accomplished this feat although the unit consisted of four new starters from 2005, including strong safety Jeremiah Bell, who was in his first season as an NFL starter.

In 2005, Phillips presided over a unit that consisted of three new starters from the previous season, including one rookie. They yielded an average of only 6.71 yards per pass play, the third-lowest figure in the AFC and sixth in the NFL. Travis Daniels, a fourth-round draft choice, started 14 games, tied for the most by a rookie cornerback in team history, along with Curtis Johnson (1970).

Under Phillips, Dolphins defensive backs have had a knack for coming up with the big play, having returned 16 interceptions or fumbles for touchdowns over the last 12 years. In Phillips' 22 previous seasons, the team's defensive backs have brought back a total of 27 interceptions or fumbles for touchdowns.

Since 2000, three different Dolphins defensive backs have been selected for the Pro Bowl a total of ten times, including three-fourths of the backfield in 2002 when cornerbacks Sam Madison and Patrick Surtain, as well as free safety Brock Marion were chosen. In fact, Madison and Surtain are the only cornerbacks in Dolphins history to earn Pro Bowl honors.

In 1998, Miami registered an NFL-high 29 interceptions, the second-most in team history, trailing only the 32 from 1978. In 2000, Phillips' unit again led the league in interceptions, snaring 28 enemy passes, including an AFC-high seven by strong safety Brian Walker. Madison and Marion were voted to the AFC Pro Bowl squad, the first time since 1974 that two Dolphins defensive backs were chosen for the Pro Bowl in the same season. All four starters in Miami's secondary tallied at least five interceptions in 2000, as the Dolphins became the first NFL team since the 1981 Tampa Bay Buccaneers to have at least four players record five or more interceptions in the same season. In 2001, for just the third time in club history, the Dolphins led the NFL in pass defense as they allowed an average of only 176.8 yards per contest. Hood Community College (1970-75), he latched on to his first full-time position at the Division I-A level when he was named defensive backs/special teams coach at Utah State in 1976. After two years in that spot, he switched sides of the ball, tutoring the quarterbacks and wide receivers from 1978-80 before being elevated to offensive coordinator in 1981, a position he held for the next three years. Two of his quarterbacks at Utah State – Eric Hipple and Bob Gagliano – went on to NFL careers. That preceded stops as offensive coordinator at both San Jose State (1984-86) and California (1987-89). In 1990, he returned to San Jose State as head

In 1990, he led the program to a mark of 9-2-1 and was named National Coach of the Year by Pro Football Weekly. In his two years, he helped develop future NFL Pro Bowl quarterback Jeff Garcia, who played at San Jose State in both of Shea's years at the school. After two years at San Jose State, Shea moved on to Stanford where he was the associate head coach/offensive coordinator under Bill Walsh from 1992-94. Shea spent one year (1995) coaching the quarterbacks and running backs with the British Columbia Lions of the Canadian League prior to his appointment at Rutgers.

From 1984 to 1991, he turned 229 receptions into 132 first downs and from 1984 to 1988, he recorded a reception in 55 of 63 games. In 1989, he played in all 16 games and caught Dan Marino's 200th career touchdown pass. Jensen was also the winner of the 1988 Dolphins Outstanding Special Teams Player Award.

The goal of the Unsung Hero Award is to honor Dolphins unsung heroes who have sacrificed for the franchise both on and off the playing field.
